Hummingbird Documentary in Production

Aug. 2013 – Revealing the power and love of God through one of nature’s most awe-inspiring creatures, “Refracted Glory” takes an up-close look at hummingbirds. This documentary digs deep into the scientific perspectives behind these amazing little birds.

“I can remember watching hummingbirds through the kitchen window years ago and hearing my granddad talk about how they fascinated him,” says producer, Benjamin Owen. “ And they still fascinate us today.”

“I am very excited to be working with Border Watch Films on this new project,” says David Rives, who is hosting the documentary; “My passion is in presenting the message of Creation through awe-inspiring and oftentimes overlooked examples of our Creator’s power. The hummingbird, I believe, is one of the best examples.”

Refracted Glory features some of the world's foremost authorities on science, history, and the Bible who inform with years of study, observation and hard data to reveal the divine inspiration at work in this marvel of design we know as hummingbirds.

“Hummingbirds are a testament to God’s grand design,” Owen says. “Refracted Glory helps shine a light on the truth seen in creation by examining their intricacies.” The glory of God is evident, not only in the macro-scale of the universe, but also in the nano-scale of living creatures.

Look for Refracted Glory, coming in 2014. You will never see a hummingbird in the same light again.
